

Expected ROI of enterprise ESS system project in Bahamas 2025

What does it take to build the future of Bahama? Building the future we envision requires partnership--a partnership between government, business, and the Bahamian people. This is not about one administration or one sector carrying the weight. It's about all of us recognizing that we each have a role to play in shaping the destiny of this nation. Is a new generation of Bahamians on the verge of new career opportunities? Friends: A new generation of Bahamians is on the verge of new careers and opportunities that were impossible until now. Artificial intelligence, advanced manufacturing, renewable energy, and digital platforms are reshaping productivity and changing industries. Do Bahamians have access to funding? Right now, Bahamians do not have credible access to funding outside of consumer loans and mortgages. There's no real, widespread support for entrepreneurs to build businesses or for everyday people to grow wealth. Local banks are unwilling to provide funding to our farmers, fishers and so they are holding back our ability to diversify the economy. Why are local banks holding back the Bahamian economy? Local banks are unwilling to provide funding to our farmers, fishers and so they are holding back our ability to diversify the economy. This must change. If the Bahamian economy is to thrive, the Bahamian people must feel like true shareholders--not spectators--in its success. What do Bahamian People need to know about the economy? The Bahamian people must see themselves in this economy. They must feel that their hard work, their dreams, and their ambitions are rewarded. They must see access to their entrepreneurial dreams. For me, this is about reform and about transformation. Can you start a business in the Bahamas? If you've ever tried to start a business in The Bahamas, you know the frustration. You get the idea, the drive, and the ambition--but then you hit the system. A system that seems designed to slow you down, not speed you up. It takes too long to open a business. It takes too long to access government services.
